XIO Strategies Among Firms Awarded $75.5M ITEC4 Contract
Company and its partners to provide passive RFID solutions for the U.S. Department of Defense (DoD) and other agencies

OCTOBER 6, 2008 – Vienna, Virginia – XIO Strategies, Inc. today announced it has been awarded a contract to provide Passive Radio Frequency Identification (pRFID) supply chain consulting services to the U.S. Department of Defense (DoD), U.S. Coast Guard and several federal agencies, North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), Coalition Partners, and other Foreign Military Sales (FMS).

Under the terms of this indefinite delivery/indefinite quantity (IDIQ) contract from the Army Contracting Agency Information Technology, E-Commerce, and Commercial Contracting Center (ITEC4), the prime contractor CDO Technologies, Inc. can be awarded task orders by the Army, Defense Logistics Agency, or any other agency within the DoD or the U.S. Coast Guard to integrate pRFID infrastructure within their supply chain.

In response to the win, Mary Ann Wagner, President of XIO Strategies said “this contract is significant because it provides the military services with the opportunity to reach the passive RFID community as DoD expands its use of the technology into the supply chain. We applaud the Army contracting organization for its thorough vetting of providers in this area.”

“Having a phenomenal group of partners to deliver on this contract is a testament to CDO’s expertise in engineering and systems integration. We are excited to begin delivering comprehensive pRFID solutions around the world to the Department of Defense under this new agreement,” said Al Wofford, president of CDO Technologies, Inc.
